Plan your week

- Fix one to two hours a day for study; short regular sessions work better than long ones.
- Finish one unit a week per subject and keep the last month for revision.
- Write down questions to ask at the next contact class.

Use your study centre

- Attend the personal contact programme on the dates your centre announces.
- Submit assignments on time; their marks count towards the result.
- Ask the centre for practical sessions if your subject has practical work.

Before the examination

- Download your admit card and check every detail.
- Practise previous questions within the time limit.
- Carry the admit card and a photo identity card to the centre.
